What was the most valuable part of the day for you ? Why?
- hearing about what other people were doing with their students and students' response
- To have a space to share a collective vision of education.
- I enjoyed connecting with others who work in various schools and realizing we are all in the same boat. This lowered my anxiety that I was not doing enough for my students.
- Learning about concrete examples of online activities
- Just seeing other teachers from other schools who are in same position as me
- Connecting and hearing about the different things being done to connect with students.

During the next session, I would like to learn more about:
- Any particularly successful activities, how people are thinking about what to do when we go back, assuming this will be in May
- Deeper look into what is potentially coming as we change/evolve as educators in the new context.
- I am very anxious to see what the Ministry decides about the WOTP hours, especially for our graduating students.
- Since I am new to this program, I would love to have a brief presentation of the curriculum
- I would like to learn more about the communication model Alex mentioned
- I like the sharing piece, especially now in our "new reality".

What could we do to improve the WOTP Mentoring Community of Practice that would help you the most?
- This is the first one I attended and it was very specific about its goals, and I thought met our (mine) expectations.
- Help us take WOTP / SPEC ED to the next level of what education can be... emancipation.
- I could only respond by saying, continue doing what you are doing; reaching out, connecting with us and allowing us to keep sharing our experiences and viewpoints.
- Discussing different practices with the different area-subjects.

- Working well. Perhaps having regular check-ins.

Are you interested in sharing next time? If so, what would you like to share?

- yes, always good to know what other people are doing. what to share--depends on whether we are back at school or not . . .
- I'd love to share on the laamb/frapp doc and its application to how we interface with our demographic.
- I am very interested.
- Since I am new to the WOTP, not really.
- No at this time.
- Open to sharing what is being done at our school.
- Website, different forms created, Google Classroom and Mentoring set up.
- If there is an interest.
